HAWAII IN CONGRESS.

The need of an efficient congressman, one with a working, and, if possible, a majority party behind him, is felt here in many ways. Hawaii wants public works and has as much right to ask for them as any other territory. Ours, for instance, is the only American coast without federal lighthouses, even Alaska being to some extent supplied; but we are not likely to get them unless the matter is put in the hands of a delegate who can rally votes for his measures. Pearl Harbor should be turned into a mid-Pacific Malta; but Congress, unless persistently urged, will take its time about furnishing the means. A revenue cutter should be maintained here, the harbor of Honolulu should be made more spacious, and the roadstead of Hilo equipped with a breakwater. Fortifications for Honolulu are as desirable as for any other American port of like importance. But all, or any, of these things are not to be had for the wishing. The congressional cow will not back up to be milked, especially to a man who is cavorting alone in the middle of a ten-acre lot; she must be roped and stalled for the purpose by a man who, if he doesn't know how himself, can get those who do know how to help him.

Anyone who stops to think ought to see that nothing in the way of public improvements can be expected through Wilcox, who, even in his second term, was unable to pass a single bill, or get for Hawaii a single penny out of the billion dollars that Congress disbursed. It is not easy for any delegate, who has no vote to do favors with, to secure appropriations for his district, but the task is infinitely harder where the applicant belongs to no party otherwise represented on the floor. Wilcox cannot ask Republicans to help him, because he does not train with that party; nor are Democrats going to aid a man who has rejected fusion with them and is running on a platform which indorses the Republican executive. Robinson Crusoe was not more alone on the island near the Orinoco than is Wilcox in the house, and the difference is in favor of Crusoe, who was at least monarch of all he surveyed. Should the present delegate get a third term, we venture nothing by the prediction that the end of it will see his record as resultless, in everything but salary for himself, as it now is. How can the outlook be otherwise? Minus party, friends, avoided by the President, without capacity even to draw or present a bill intelligently, Wilcox must, if he returns to Congress, be a mere lay figure, there, a nonentity, a failure. Can Hawaii, needing so much of Congress, afford to perpetuate a nonentity in her Congressional seat?

The election of the Prince ought, even in his first term, to bring substantial results. Unlike Wilcox, Kuhio is a broadly intelligent man—a man of initiative and working capacity—who gains respect and assistance by dint of his deserts. He already has the promise, if he goes to Congress, of the aid and favor of eminent Republican legislators. When he introduces a bill it will, if a good one, be carried on by the strong tide of party legislation. If it meets a snag or an eddy, willing hands will be reached out to extricate it and send it on its way. The Prince is always popular wherever he goes. He would soon be on good terms with his fellow congressmen, the heads of departments, and the President himself. The great leverage of social prominence and opportunity would be his—a help of which Wilcox could never avail himself. And behind him at all times would be the growing social prestige at Washington of his aunt, the former Queen.

Such a man as Prince Kuhio not only deserves election on his own account, but he would be a sound investment for Hawaii and especially for his compatriots, the native people. In public works, as the natives well know, is the best opportunity for the wage-earner. Hundreds of Hawaiian laborers have good jobs from the territory; they are, for example, building or mending roads on every island of the group; but if fortifications, lighthouses, and harbor improvements were made, five men would go on the federal payroll where there is one on the territorial wage list. A Hawaiian vote for the Prince is, therefore, a vote to give the Hawaiian laborer plenty of work at good pay and reasonable hours. On the other hand, a vote for Wilcox would be one to pay him a big salary, out of which the Hawaiian laborer could get nothing. Which vote would the laborer naturally prefer to cast?

The use of gas stoves for cooking has increased on the coast and would increase more if means were found to improve its broiling capacity and decrease its cost. At the time of the Papa Ita show in Honolulu, the writer was impressed with the idea that a stove filled with porous lava rocks, among which lighted gas was allowed to play until the stones, which are non-explosive, attained a white heat, would quite fill the bill for a cooking range. Once hot, the lava could be kept so by a small expenditure of gas, and would, though indestructible, answer all purposes for which coal is now used. Hawaii has immense quantities of the porous rock, and so has the Shasta region of California.

Senator Harris of Kansas has discovered that shoes are cheaper in free trade England than they are in protected America. Others have noted the same thing, but they have also observed that the protected workingman of America gets more money than his English cousins to buy shoes with.

It was Senator Bill White of Lahoma who asked: "What are we in the legislature for except to fill our pockets?" That is one of the reasons why Bill ought to be left this year to fill his pockets at home.

Kilauea starts up a little now and then, but if she wants to get an eruption in edgewise she should wait until the political orators are done.

It would be queer, wouldn't it, to find that some of the funds stolen from the Territory had gone to pay Home Rule campaign expenses.

Wilcoxism is now on the run. All that remains is to keep it there.

PARTY OF KUHIO AT KAKAOKO

himself loved the people in fact. Cayless he said had done nothing, but had contented himself with place hunting ever since his arrival on the beach.

Prince Kuhio was praised, the leper bill denounced and the speaker closed with reference to the old saying that an all must go for what the people need, which meant that Prince Kuhio must be sent to Washington if the people would secure the recognition to which they are entitled.

D. P. R. Isenberg began by saying the allegation that he sought election so that he might work for a business house. He said that while in the legislature before he had struggled for the good of the people, trying to defeat the leper bill and working only for the good of the people. He said that what he wanted was to see another boom in business here, and then there would be money coming in for the purpose of developing the industries and thus furnishing work for all.

Senator Kanuha was greeted with mingled cheers and hoots when he appeared, and "snake" was banded about for a moment. He began by telling the people that he wanted simply to let them know what fools they had been when they elected a Home Rule legislature. He said that the only thing that was done was to cry "down" with any bill that was introduced by a Republican. He told how Wilcox had returned from Washington and changed the name of the party but he said the tail was not big enough to wag the party, and in consequence nothing came of it. Wilcox's love for the Hawaiians was a constant boast, but when he had been sent to Washington his first recommendation was of Cayless, a mail-hini, for judge. Ng Mon War's nomination was due to contributions and the people were thus insulted. He protested against the leper bill, saying that there would be thousands of lepers brought here, and this would mean that the native vote would be lost in the votes of the new element.

W. W. Harris found reason to be sorry that election day came so early, saying that otherwise the people would have to go to the polls in boats, which would be a lesson for the Home Rule legislature paved the streets where the rich lived but left the Kakaoko streets without paving or draining. Ridiculing Wilcox's plan for forty acres of land for each man, he said that Wilcox claimed that he came from Maui, but when he talked so it would seem that instead he had come from Kawaihau. In discussing the leper question he said Republicans would vote any amount for the unfortunate, but that another Home Rule legislature would simply refuse to pass any bill so that Wilcox might claim that he had reason on the side of the leper plan.

W. H. Kailimai, who was formerly a Home Ruler, was greeted with mingled cheers and hoots, and it was some time before he could be heard. He said that he was foolish before but that after studying the situation he had come to the decision to vote and urge all his friends and supporters to vote for all the Republican nominees.

Kumalae spoke at length of the needs of the Territory and the dangers of selecting Wilcox again. He criticized the majority party as being unfaithful to the trust of the people. He showed that it was a Republican who introduced the bill for the pensioning of the queen and that all the real good of the legislation had come from that side. He touched upon the record of Charles Nottley, indicating that he had been engaged in assisting in the Republic and that his father had spent time and money in the fight for annexation.

Kumalae told a story of how during the plague fire Prince Kuhio, seeing a woman in danger, tore off his coat and proceeded through the smoke to her home and there broke windows and got her out, taking her to his own home and feeding and clothing her and her family. He closed with an eulogy and appeal for the election of Prince Kuhio. Frank Andrade spoke of the necessity for a good legislature owing to the fact that the last one was a failure. He touched upon the land and leper bills, and was well received when he concluded. William Aylett spoke of the failure of Home Rulers to do anything, and he cited many bills. Captain Helli also spoke at some length.

APPEARANCE OF FRAWLEY TROUPE

(Yokohama Gazette.)

The Public hall was packed on Saturday (September 19) night and though extra chairs had been provided some of the audience could only find standing room, the occasion being the performance by the Neill-Frawley Company in Gillette's drama, "Secret Service."

It is a very long time since we had such a really good company here and it is gratifying to reflect that Yokohama—which has a bad name with professional companies—gave them a warm reception, the proceeds of the "house" being, we believe, a record.

At the close of the first act a splendid basket of flowers was handed up to Miss Van Buren, accompanied by a mysterious "roll." We learn that both were presented by Mr. Tom McKay, and that the "roll" was a portrait of the recipient, beautifully done on silk. EVANGELIST GEIST.

There was only a small audience on Friday (September 19) evening at Van Shalk Hall at the first address by Mr. William E. Geil, the impartial investigator of foreign missions, but those who attended expressed interest. The speaker was introduced by Rev. Dearing, and Rev. E. S. Booth offered prayer. Mr. Geil spoke rapidly and entertainingly, giving a brief outline of his work since leaving Philadelphia about two years ago. Some account of his trip has already been given in the press. He told especially of the marvelous audiences that he addressed in Australia—marvelous in size and diversity—and then spoke of St. John and held up as an example the Apostle's victory over pride and gradual selection as the chief friend of his Master. Mr. Geil's style is of the "familiarly brilliant" order and he never fails to hold the attention of his auditors.

"JULIUS CAESAR" IN JAPAN.

A correspondent of the N.-C. Daily News says:

Mr. Tsubouchi, a Japanese man of letters, made a translation of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" some years ago for the Japanese stage, but though it had been repeatedly performed in Tokyo and elsewhere before audiences who were only too anxious to catch the spirit of the great English dramatist, such audiences have in the great majority of cases been almost to a man in the dark as to the meaning of the play, at the close of the curtain.

Mr. Shima, librarian of the Kyoto University, has now translated "King Lear," using considerable latitude in order to adapt it to the Japanese taste; and it is reported in the Japan Times that a soshi troupe will perform this play, at classic Kyoto. It must be borne in mind that soshi actors are the revolutionary actors who want to reform the classic stage, and to introduce Western theatrical innovations wholesale. Miss Sado Yacco and her troupe, who excited so much interest at the Paris exposition last year, are only soshi actors—and poor ones at that; and no Japanese would dream for a moment of mentioning them in the same breath with Danjuro. Tokyo theatre goers were greatly amused at the emprosement with which Paris and London threw themselves on that occasion at the feet of Mr. Kawakami, and Miss Yacco; and they have ever since entertained a very poor opinion of theatrical taste in the West.

PLEASING RESULTS

always follow the use of Newbro's Herculene, the new scientific cure for dandruff and falling hair. It possesses certain properties that kill the germ or microbe that causes all the trouble by sapping the oil out of the hair bulb. With this parasite destroyed, dandruff and the falling hair cannot exist. A thick, soft growth of hair springs forth where formerly thin, brittle hair, or perhaps total baldness held sway. One bottle will convince you of its merits.

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.

"I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." EUGENE FORBES, Lebanon, Kan.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Cures catarrh—it soothes and strengthens mucous membrane and builds whole system.

WESTERN EXPANDED METAL & FIRE PROOFING COMPANY.
San Francisco, Sept. 25th, 1902.

To the Hawaiian Electric Co., Ltd., Honolulu, T. H.

Gentlemen:—We have almost completed our contract for fireproofing the Young Building in Honolulu, Hawaii, on which building we have used Westinghouse motors, furnished and erected by you for all of our hoisting purposes, also for machinery for mixing concrete and the same have given perfect satisfaction in every respect. In fact, we find that the electric power and appliances have been much cheaper for us than either steam or gasoline. This is proven to us by the fact that we have used both steam and gasoline on different buildings on the Coast and other places, with greater cost for doing the same class of work. We have used your motors for over seven months and were only delayed once for about twenty minutes, which delay was caused by lightning entering your station and shutting down all machinery.

We deem it a great pleasure to recommend your electric power and apparatus to any one doing similar work and believe that it would give satisfaction in any other class of work where either steam or gasoline power could be used.

Thanking you for the courteous treatment we have received from you during all our business transactions, we remain, yours very truly,
